

June 2019

Teen Trends - US

"Although they represent a small share of the population and spending power, teens continue to dictate where the US market is going and how it will look in the future. Parents still have a significant amount of power over teens and their choices, but teens are asserting their independence now ...