“There is potential for access control products to add more commercial value in terms of business intelligence as applications in the airport sector have shown. Innovation in the access control market is expected to increase due to the arrival of new companies in the sector.”
– Ben Harris, Industrial Analyst

This report looks at the following areas:

- Refurbishment and rising hotel supply bolster demand
- Airport security concerns demand tighter access
- New brands entering the market

The access control market has been supported by improving macroeconomic conditions in 2014. Operators report that investment projects that were stalled in previous years have been moving ahead with greater frequency. The market is benefiting from the gradual shift towards IP-based systems taking place across the wider security industry.

Demand for features such as remote access is driving greater adoption of IP-based networked systems. The ability to integrate other applications, such as heating and lighting, onto one networked system is also stimulating demand.
