"A reviving South American economy should give the region's hotel sector a lift. The important news is that the continent's two biggest economies, Argentina and Brazil, which together account for well over two thirds of South America's economy, are pulling out of recession in 2017 and are projected to embark on a multi-year period of growth."

- Jessica Kelly, Senior Tourism Analyst

This report looks at the following areas:

- What has been the recent trend in arrivals and overnights in South American hotels?
- What is the breakdown of South American hotel capacity by country/region?
- Which are the main South American hotel groups and what is the nature of their portfolios?
- How extensive is the presence of foreign hotel chains in South America?
