“Universities are undergoing huge changes due to deregulation and the age of much of the estate, leading to a buoyant sector. Meanwhile, the government’s public expenditure strategy is curtailing investment in schools and the health sector, but is coming under increasing demographic and political pressure to relax restrictions.”

- Terry Leggett, Senior Analyst

This report looks at the following areas:

- How will the market develop over the next five years?
- What will be the key market drivers?
- What sectors offer the best prospects?
- How is government policy affecting the market?
- Will rising competition between universities increase property investment?
