

June 2022

Customer Service Preferences in Financial Services - UK

“Although customer service satisfaction levels are fairly high, there is vulnerability as branch closures continue and the cost-of-living crisis drives the need for support. Many consumers still prefer human interaction, especially for more complex issues and advice. This will require the shift to digital communication to retain face-to-face communications, with ...