

September 2015

Charitable Giving - Ireland

“Slacktivism is popular in Ireland, with Irish consumers showing a preference for interacting with charities through ‘liking’ their social networking pages, signing online petitions and posting pictures and videos of fundraisers. Thus further integrating these platforms into their promotional activities and encouraging consumers to interact with them can help charities ...