The results-oriented emphasis in facial care advertising puts the category at the risk of disappointing its consumers if claims do not deliver on their promise. Although new claims can generate interest, those that do not follow up with visible results can damage the credibility of the skincare category in general.

– Michelle Strutton, Senior Consumer Analyst

In this report we answer the key questions:

- How will the current economy impact growth prospects for facial care?
- Catch her if you can: Where is the consumer shopping for facial care?
- What drives women to use facial care?
- How will the e-revolution impact facial care marketing?

The facial skincare market is one of the biggest and fastest-growing beauty categories in the UK, and one of the most active in Europe. The category generated £956 million in 2011 at retail and the prestige channel has been defying market trends and growing at a faster rate than the mass market. Spending has been strong particularly among high earners, and the retail scene has been dynamic, spearheading game-changing concepts, like the pop-up store for online retailer Cult Beauty in Selfridges.

Mintel's definition of facial skincare includes products primarily targeted at women, as follows:

- Moisturisers/treatments
- Cleansers, including scrubs, washes, wipes, make-up remover
- Toners
- Masks
- Specialised products such as lip salves, eye care
- Medicated skincare

Your business guide towards growth and profitability

A Mintel report is your one, best resource for information and analysis on consumer markets and categories.

Each report contains:

- Primary consumer research
- Market size and five year forecast
- Market share and segmentation
- Brand and communications analysis
- Product and service innovation

To see what we cover in this report click on the report's "contents" section.

If you have any questions or require further information, send an email to oxygen@mintel.com or call one of our regional offices:

EMEA: +44 (0)20 7778 7151
Americas: +1 (312) 932 0600
APAC: +61 (0)2 8284 8100

oxygen.mintel.com © 2012 Mintel Group Ltd. All Rights Reserved. Confidential to Mintel.